

Selected Vocabulary from

“The Haunted Lighthouse: P̄hetížanžan Othí Naǵíthun Kin” awáŋyanke – an overseer of something (mentioned), a keeper, guard hasmú – sand čhokáta – in the center, in the middle há – skin, hide; outer covering ih’áŋ – to cook something ikčéya – ordinarily, regularly, normally, naturally, merely ikíphi – to be worthy enough, adequate, good enough, fit for íŋyan – a rock iyákaškA – to tie or fasten something on to something íyašlalyA – to catch someone in the act of a bad or naughty deed íyatayela – personally, directly, face to face iyéčhiŋka – all by oneself, voluntarily iyópsičA – to jump down onto something iyóyanpa – to shine or give light, be bright iyóžanžan – there is light, it glows, it gives light, it emits light iyútaŋ – to be tempted by something kiksúyeyA – to cause someone to remember something míyoglas’iŋ – a mirror mniákičhita – a sailor, mariner mniskúya – salt mniwáŋča – the ocean, sea naǵí – soul, spirit, someone’s spirit/ghost nathákA – to close or lock something niyÁ – to save someone, rescue, make live nuŋwÁŋ – to swim očéthi – a fireplace, stove óhuta – where water meets the land, shore opáwiŋge – one hundred óštaŋ – to fit something into something else othíwota – an abandoned home site owé – footprints oyúhlokA – to discover something paílepi – a flashlight pasí – to investigate something, research p̄hetížanžan – a lamp, lantern thihúkhuta – downstairs thimá – inside thióžanžan – a lighthouse thukíla – a clam shell tháža – waves (as on the ocean) thúŋpi – to be born wakhángli – lightning; electricity waníyetu – a winter; a year wanjátakiya – upwards, towards the sky wapási – to investigate things, research things, inquire about things waslólyA – to know about things, be knowledgeable wawóptetušni – to be invaluable, priceless, irreplaceable (as a person with particular special talents) wičhánape – a human hand wíkhaŋ – a rope yuónihaŋ – to respect, honor, ziŋtkála – a bird